

HOW will I pay for long-term
nursing care?

Here are some financial options to consider:

- Long-term care insurance. Medigap, employer-provided, or private health insurance plans can offset the cost of long-term nursing care, but these policies need to be in place before a major health event occurs.
- Medicare. While Medicare generally doesn't cover long-term nursing care stays in a nursing home, it may cover hospital care, doctor services, and medical supplies for those in long-term nursing care.
- Paying out of pocket. If your family chooses to pay for care with their own funds, be sure to ask each facility you're considering about their payment options.

HOW
do I prepare my loved one for a move
to long-term
nursing care?

It's no surprise that most people would rather stay in their home than transition to a care facility. Here are some tips to consider before starting the discussion.

- Enlist the help of your loved one's doctor or a health care professional. Often doctors and nurses are more persuasive than a relative or close friend.
- Share information about the care center. Your loved one will want to know details about where they'll be moving, so be prepared with photos, brochures, and other educational materials.
- Listen and acknowledge your loved one's concerns. Demonstrate that you understand their feelings, and assure your loved one that the move is the best way to ensure they receive the care and attention they need.
